

MOVE FOR REDUCTION IN SIZE OF CITY COUNCIL GAINS MOMENTUM AS MEMBERS APPROVE

STATE ROAD BOARD ORDERS $200,000 CUT IN OVERHEAD

Reductions in Salaries and Operating Costs Have Been Placed in Effect; Expense Accounts Bear Brunt.

NEW CONTRACT AWARDS MARCH 22

Projects Include Atlanta-Buford Grading and Paving Between Indian Springs and Forsyth.

The state highway board Thursday announced "salary reductions and eliminations of expense accounts" which Chairman W. Eugene Wilburn said would not cost the state more than $200,000 annually.

At the same time the board announced that contracts for projects involving an expenditure of about $900,000 would be awarded on March 22, the projects including the grading of the final four miles of the new Atlanta to Buford highway and the paving of the 13-mile stretch between Indian Springs and Forsyth in Butts and Monroe counties, the latter project to be paid for out of state funds.

Chairman Wilburn said that the salary reductions, which affected every employee of the department save those who were drawing small sums, were considered an adjustment rather than a cut and that the elimination of needless expense accounts accounted for $140,000 of the $200,000 annual saving. The changes have already been put into effect.

"The members of the board have felt for some time that the salaries of its personnel were too high," Mr. Wilburn said. "We have been paying higher salaries to those employees who were in the service before we came on the board than to those we have employed ourselves. We have ordered reductions for practically all our 1,100 employees and have directed that only expenses that cannot be avoided will be permitted to be charged against the department's budget."

The board chairman said that expense accounts of the department's employees have been too large and that in many instances they were cut out all together and in other cases drastically reduced.

"Employees have been doing a lot of unnecessary traveling and incurring expenses which will no longer be permitted," Mr. Wilburn said.

In addition to the Atlanta-Buford and the Indian Springs-Forsyth projects, the following projects will be contracted for at the March 22 letting:

Surface treatment of three and one-half miles of the highway from Thomasville to Monticello, Fla., in Thomas county.

Surface treatment of six miles on the Rome-Summersville highway in Chittawa county.

Three miles of lime rock construction on the Blakely-Colquhoun highway in Early county.

Five miles of surface treatment on the Blue Ridge highway in Gilmer county.

Gravel base surface treatment on the Buchanan-Bremen highway in Harcon county.

Five miles of paving on the Buena Vista-Ellaville highway in Marion county, the first paving ever done in that county.

Three miles of concrete paving out of Dallas on the highway to Atlanta, the first paving in Paulding county.

Five miles of grading on the Athensville-Cordelle highway in Wilcox county.

Paving of state highway through the city of Sparta in Hancock county.

Nine miles of grading in Pierce county on the highway between Patterson and Alma.

Three miles of surface treatment in Atkinson county on the highway between Pearson and Alapaha.

Grading and overhead bridge in the city of Cochran in Bleckley county.

Resurfacing of highway Route 10 through the city of Washington in Wilkes county.

New Agricultural Law Will Benefit Peanuts

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The senate today approved an amendment to the agricultural adjustment act extending the benefits of that law to peanuts.

The amendment, proposed by Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, was tacked on the Jones-Connally bill, making dairy and beef cattle basic commodities subject to A. A. A. benefits.

To increase prices, processing taxes would be levied on these products and producers paid to reduce crops.

A vote on the bill itself remained to be taken.

U. S. TO DEMAND REORGANIZATION OF AIR MAIL FIRMS

Committees and Officials Launch Steps for Enforcement of F. D. R.'s Recommendations.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—A complete reorganization of air mail companies whose contracts were canceled, including the dropping of many prominent aviation executives, will be demanded by the administration if those lines seek to carry the mail again.

This became evident today as congressional committees and postoffice department officials worked toward enactment of President Roosevelt's recommendations for returning the business of flying the mail to private carriers on a basis of "honest pay for honest service."

At the same time army officials shaped plans to continue with June 1 or later with the new task so suddenly thrust upon them by the annulment of the old private contracts.

Postoffice officials estimated at least 60 days would elapse before new bids could be received from commercial lines and predicted several new companies, now operating independently on a comparatively small scale, would enter the air mail picture.

Brigadier General Oscar Westover, of the air corps, returned today with a swing around the country inspecting army air mail bases, equipment and flying personnel. He immediately ordered the department to make plans to continue carrying the mail for several months for the valuable experience to be gained.

Meanwhile, Paul Henderson, vice president of United Aircraft & Transport Corporation, testified before the senate air mail investigation committee that he had lent $10,000 in 1930 to Chase C. Gove, deputy second assistant postmaster-general under W. Irving Glover.

Henderson said Gove, a close friend of long standing, "had been gambling with all the money he had in the world." The loans have not been repaid.

Postoffice officials indicated strongly today that those aviation executives who participated in the 1930 conference at which it has been charged private carriers by fraud and collusion divided up air mail routes, would have to be dropped in any contemplated reorganization for the purpose of making new bids.

Senate committee testimony shows these men were among those who attended the conference, presided over by William P. MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce, for air, who is now under bond pending an appeal on charges of contempt of the senate.

D. M. Schaeffer, Transcontinental Air Transport; Harris M. Hanshue, Western Air Express; Colonel L. H. Britton, Northwest Airways; Thomas D. Lee, Eastern Air Transport; L. W. Robbins and George Hann, Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, and Clifford Ball, Clifford Ball, Inc.

In addition these lines will be required to divorce themselves of affiliates and holding companies and in some cases to appear for hearing.

As one post-office official said:

"If they want to bid they must be reorganized."

M'ARTHUR CALLED TO TESTIFY TODAY ON ARMY BUYING

All Purchases Will Be Investigated, Chairman of House Subcommittee Declares.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The wide-flung purchases of the war department, including one type of equipment which already has figured in a grand jury inquiry, will be reviewed before the house military committee beginning tomorrow with the appearance of General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

"We are going into all these other purchases, trucks included, just like we are studying airplanes," said Chairman Rogers, of the subcommittee making the investigation. MacArthur also has been asked, he added, to produce pertinent records concerning all army purchases.

A District of Columbia grand jury which has been pursuing an inquiry into business practices of the war department, with the buying of trucks among the items scrutinized, learned during the day that leads which investigators had followed in Kansas apparently were fruitless.

Meantime, a house naval subcommittee returned a report holding its investigation did not reveal that navy officials had been "profiteering" or "colluding."

But before it reached that decision, it spent more than an hour discussing a British subject whose record, in the words of Chairman Delaney, democrat, New York, "seems to be well known."

Several persons known to the committee, including a democrat, Texas, tried to insert in the record a statement by C. H. J. MacKenzie-Kennedy, holding American citizenship, who was suing the government for $500,000 for infringement of a patent. The authorities here know nothing about the case, he said.

"He is over here at the instance of the British government to find out what his own government will not be damn fool enough to tell him."

Representative Strong, republican, Pennsylvania, chimed in with "What right has a British subject to come butting in here? I feel like taking him by the neck and throwing him out of the window."

"You can't take that kind of a back slap at that Scotchman," McFarlane retorted, rising in his chair. "His interest in this country is to keep (Rear) Admiral (Ernest) King from stealing his tail gun patent."

"But here's his statement showing the rest of the world outclasses us. I don't know whether that is the truth or not, but he's a British spy, my God, gentlemen, we ought to know it."

"Well, the United States has never lost a war so far," Delaney replied. "And the committee voted 7 to 1 to refuse to accept the MacKenzie-Kennedy statement. 8 to 0 to accept one by William Mitchell, former chief of the A. E. F. air forces, and 10 to 1 to adopt the report saying the navy's method of buying airplanes was all right and that profits had been 'reasonable.'"

McFarlane said he reserved the right to file a minority report.

Two Bank Employees Robbed of $50,000

GREENVILLE, S. C., March 8.—(UP)—Two employees of the South Carolina National bank were held up and robbed of a mail pouch containing $50,000 in currency here today.

The money was being taken from the post office by the bank's messenger when he was stopped by a light automobile driven alongside the car and forced to the curb. One of the robbers jumped on the running board of the bank messenger's car, and the other, wearing dark glasses and armed with revolvers, forced the driver to the curb. The money was fully insured.

Prince Gives Up Royal Rights By Marrying German Actress

Prince Sigvard, son of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, who has been disowned by the Swedish royal family because of his marriage Thursday to Fraulien Erika Patzek, actress daughter of a wealthy German merchant.

LONDON, March 8.—(AP)—Prince Sigvard of Sweden surrendered his royal rights today and married the beautiful German actress, Erika Patzek, in one of the most exciting civil ceremonies held in London for a long time.

They departed soon after the ceremony for Berlin.

It was one of the rapid-fire weddings, by special license, for which old London Hall is famous.

Several hundred persons jammed the streets in front of the hall and twice broke through police lines—the first time when the dark-haired and slender prince and the petite, golden-haired Fraulien arrived.

When the couple left a few minutes later.

GOLF TOURNAMENT DAYLIGHT HOLDUP PLAYS TODAY NETS BANDIT $475

Metropolitan Open Brings Many Famous Players to East Lake.

The greatest field of golfers assembled in Georgia since the 1927 South-eastern open will leave the tee at East Lake today in the first round of 72 holes of medal play in the first annual Atlanta Metropolitan open golf tournament.

In the field is Paul Runyan, leading money winner in the winter tournaments; Tom Creavy, who won the west coast P. G. A. championship; Horton Smith, high-ranking professional; Johnny Revolta, Al Espinosa, Willie MacFarlane and a host of others whose names are familiar to all golfers.

In addition to these there are the ranking amateurs of Georgia and adjoining states. The field will reach a total of more than 130.

The tournament, which is sponsored by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce and underwritten by Atlanta merchants, offers $2,000 in prize money with $500 going to the winning professional. Silver trophies are awarded to the amateurs.

The department is informed that as a result of the Atlanta city council's failure to balance the city budget, no payments have been made by the city since January 1 to meet the terms of this agreement.

Administrator Harry L. Hopkins is now in Florida and he will be in Atlanta next week for conference on this and other subjects.

CWA Threatens To Stop All Relief Work in Atlanta

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Information comes from the civil works administration that unless Atlanta does something to meet the terms of the city's agreement with the CWA concerning relief work, the Atlanta office of the administration may be closed, the administration withdrawing from further relief work in that city.

It is recalled that an agreement was reached by which the city was to contribute $50,000 a month to relief work, in consideration of which the CWA was to continue its liberal contributions toward relief conditions in Atlanta, this sum aggregating during the past year several million dollars.

Mayor James L. Key Thursday laid expressed hope that CWA relief would not be withdrawn from Atlanta, asserting that the city could not bear the burden of relief which would then be demanded. He laid blame for failure of the city to keep its agreement with the CWA concerning relief work, the Atlanta office of the administration may be closed, the administration withdrawing from further relief work in that city.

It is recalled that an agreement was reached by which the city was to contribute $50,000 a month to relief work, in consideration of which the CWA was to continue its liberal contributions toward relief conditions in Atlanta, this sum aggregating during the past year several million dollars.

The department is informed that as a result of the Atlanta city council's failure to balance the city budget, no payments have been made by the city since January 1 to meet the terms of this agreement.

Mrs. Roosevelt Reaches San Juan After Visit to Virgin Islands

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here this evening after a trip to the Virgin Islands, whose delighted residents acclaimed her and proudly showed her evidences of their recent progress.

On the two-hour flight from St. Croix, the president's wife declared "the day was well worth while, and I got a very good picture of the Virgin Islands, past and present, whose people seemed happy and healthy."

The plane in which she and a group of friends are making an inspection tour of the West Indies completed the two-hour flight from St. Croix at 5:30 p. m.

Mrs. Roosevelt was welcomed officially and was given the keys to the city by Jesus Benitez Castano, the city manager.

Escorted by motorcycles, the party was taken to the governor's pink palace at La Fortaleza, which is 400 years old. On the way people hurried from doorways and shouted "Viva La Senora Roosevelt!" as they surged about her automobile.

During the day she made four speeches in which she assured the islanders of the president's interest in their welfare. They accepted her as a real representative of her husband. Opponents of a new charter approved by the public works administrator presented their petition to her.

In one of the Virgin Island villages—now being remodeled into federal homesteads—she asked Hilda Benjamin, a native housewife, what she was cooking.

"NRA pork," answered Hilda, who complained she got rained on in going from the living room to the outdoor kitchen in her two-room home, built by Uncle Sam.

"Have your man build a gallery," suggested Mrs. Roosevelt in reply. The president's wife told other housewives they must keep flies out of the food. Later she had them show her how they used their crude utensils, and drank coconut milk offered by natives at the roadside.

The day began for Mrs. Roosevelt at 7:30 a. m., when she went swimming and later, with members of her party, visited the lofty Bluebird Castle at St. Thomas, which is being built into a hotel with federal money to lure tourists' dollars to the impoverished islands.

She inspected farm projects around Lindbergh bay, watched the building of roads, draining of swamps and repairing of schools, untiringly asking questions.

Then, at 9:30 a. m. she, her friends and Governor Paul Pearson hopped from St. Thomas for St. Croix, the arrival here being 25 minutes later.

They stepped ashore at the spot where Columbus is reputed to have landed from his first crossing of the Atlantic. A negro child gave Mrs. Roosevelt a big bouquet.

She received two other gifts—a bottle of 45-year-old St. Croix rum "to take to the president," and an inland mahogany and sandalwood (ex table—the latter a gift from the Democratic Club).

When she took the bottle Mrs. Roosevelt said she hoped the islands would continue to produce commodities of high standard. She told club members she appreciated the table because she knew about island furniture.

For luncheon the party went to Christiansted. There they were met by officials, members of the clergy, and other prominent citizens in the executive mansion.

Mrs. Roosevelt received a check from the chairman of the colonial council, representing money raised as a public contribution to the Warm Springs Foundation.

After shaking hands with 300 persons in the Christiansted legislative hall—where Mrs. Roosevelt was given a photograph of her late uncle, Theodore Roosevelt, and the late R. L. Merwin, who bottled the rum—the president's wife and the other visitors left at 3:45 p. m. for the return.

They returned to St. Thomas from St. Croix at 3:30 p. m., eastern standard time, and departed immediately for San Juan, Puerto Rico, where they planned to spend the night.

Everywhere in the islands they were cheered.

In reply to an address at the governor's mansion.

The St. Croix Tribune, meanwhile, said editorially that the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt shows "we are not forgotten."

Closed Bank Losses*Income Tax Credits

Accounts in closed banks may be deducted from incomes in making income tax returns and will be classed as bad debts, the internal revenue department at Washington announced on Friday.

The allowance can be made, however, only after the bank conservator has made a statement indicating the approximate percentage of deposits the bank expects to pay. The difference between the total and the full amount will be allowed.

FOUR MEN ESCAPE FROM KENTUCKY JAIL

PADUCAH, Ky., March 8.—(AP)—Four men were discovered today to have escaped from the McCracken county jail, including three who got away February 27 and Orville Champion, who was arrested at that time charged with aiding them and three others to get out. All six were caught a few hours after the first got away. A smuggled pistol was used the first time, but last night the four got out by sawing cell locks, tearing away sheet iron and bricks from the wall and lowering themselves with a rope of blankets.

MARCONI STRIKES AT SELFISHNESS AS CRISIS CAUSE

ROME, March 8.—(AP)—In defense of science and "its offspring, the machine," Guglielmo Marconi struck out tonight at "human selfishness" as one of the basic causes of the world crisis. The affirmation that science and the machine are responsible for the world crisis and unemployment must be definitely rejected, the famous inventor declared in an address before Italy's most distinguished scientists in the Palazzo Venezia.

"They have made it possible for man, with enormously reduced effort, still to have everything he needs for a life of comfort. It is not the machine or science that have provoked the ills from which we suffer."

"We have been cheated of the advantages they have brought by a defective distribution of the wealth and resources providence has given us in abundance, and above all by human selfishness."

"The time when science was considered a luxury and merely a spiritual satisfaction has passed. It is now generally recognized that the collaboration of science, industry and national defense will give a nation industrial and commercial superiority in time of peace. In time of war it gives technical superiority without which sacrifice, courage and even heroism are often unavailing."

In the distinguished audience was Premier Mussolini, who showed his approval with emphatic nods as the inventor developed his subject.

ABATEMENT ORDERED OF SMOKE NUISANCE*Defense To Appeal Decision Rendered by Recorder After Hearing

Fitzhugh Knox & Son, real estate concern and operators of two apartment houses at 1403 West Peachtree and 1420 Peachtree streets, was ordered Thursday to abate an alleged smoke nuisance in the neighborhood within 30 days after several defending and prosecuting witnesses appeared before Recorder A. W. Callaway. The law firm of Grant & Long for the defense announced it would appeal to the higher courts on the decision.

CARNER'S MANAGER FORFEITS $5,000 BOND

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Federal Judge William Bondy today declared forfeited the $5,000 bail bond posted by William J. Duffy, Primo Carnera's American manager, to insure his presence in court for sentence under his plea of guilty to a charge of not filing an income tax return.

Duffy's name was called in court last Monday, and Duffy was not there, nor was he present today. Judge Bondy said: "It is disrespectful to the court for the defendant not to be here."

RAIL BODY EXTENDS MISSISSIPPI FARES

JACKSON, Miss., March 8.—(AP)—Extension of present low fares on the Mobile & Ohio railroad until May 31 was granted by the Mississippi railroad commission today, as it closed its March meeting. The low fares were due to terminate March 31.

Two Greek Physicians Again Examine Insull

ATHEENS, March 8.—(AP)—The determination from a medical standpoint of whether Samuel Insull should go or stay was considered by two physicians tonight as the case of the former American utilities head reached another stage of what has proved to be a series of orders and counter-orders.

Dr. Vladimir Bennis and Dr. George Livieratos on government instructions devoted 23 minutes this noon to listening to Insull's heart, tapping his chest, and questioning him, and then retired to compare their findings.

Their report, it was said, will be submitted to the interior minister tomorrow. Rumors were circulated, meanwhile, that another period of grace may be given.

The minister stated emphatically Monday that the 74-year-old fugitive would have to leave Greece within 48 hours, but later changed his mind and ordered today's re-examination.

Even though, as before, the doctors find the patient able to travel, the minister of interior still can through the prerogatives of his office soften his attitude and allow another extension of the one-time Chicagoan's residence permit.

527 ARE TREATED FOR HYDROPHOBIA

State Records Unusually High Prevalence of Mad Dogs This Year.

A record of 527 persons in the state treated for hydrophobia since January 1 was announced Thursday by officials of the state health department. Seventeen persons are now receiving treatment in two Georgia communities for the bites of two rabid dogs.

In Simsville seven persons were bitten within the last day or so and in Grantville 10 were bitten or exposed since Sunday. The two dogs, which were tested and found mad, were four-month-old pups from the same litter, it was said.

Dr. T. F. Sellers, chief of the laboratory of the state health department, said that the 527 persons who received treatment since the first of this year had established a record for the last five or six years. Seventy-two of the number were bitten since March 1.

All over the state dogs infected with rabies are prevalent and the number of persons being exposed or bitten is increasing.

The two puppies which bit 17 in Simsville and Grantville were of the same litter and were owned by Mrs. C. F. Smith, of Simsville, and Dr. H. A. Sellers, of Grantville.

Dog owners in Georgia were warned to keep close watch on their pets and to examine them carefully if they act strangely.

Those bitten by the dog in Simsville were Layland and Lurline Jones, 6 and 4, of 20 Sims avenue; Doris Eskew, 7, of 27 Sims avenue; Mrs. Mandy Norrell, 70; Norrell and Ella Smith, 6 and 13, of 32 Sims avenue; and J. Huddleston, of Johnson road.

Huddleston, who was attacked by the dog Wednesday, killed it with a hammer and sent the head to the health department.

In Grantville, Dr. H. A. Sellers, little Mary King Sellers, Harold O'Kelley, Walton Thornton, Bill Jeeter, Maddox Johnson, A. M. Fuller, Lewis Bradberry, James McKenzie and William Wright were bitten. All are taking the rabies treatment, which is furnished by the health department.

Both Judge Cone and Judge Callaway Thursday said they would impose the fullest penalty of the law for traffic violators and welcomed the chance to aid in making the Atlanta streets safe.

Reports of flagrant violations of the ordinances regulating traffic and of careless and dangerous driving continued to pour into the Atlanta Motor Club Thursday.

More than 100 traffic cases were made Thursday by Captain Jack Malcolm's men and 89 were booked Wednesday. All through the week the officers have given tickets to every violator of the traffic regulations they saw, and Captain Malcolm announced that the action of his men will continue until accidents in Atlanta caused by disregard of rules are reduced to a minimum.

Two more persons lost the right to drive Thursday in Judge Jesse Wood's court and a third was bound over on a charge of driving while drunk after being given heavy sentences for several violations by Judge Cone in recorder's court.

Negligence Charged to Officials By Cummings in Dillinger Case

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—General Cummings as "one of the most disgraceful episodes I know anything about."

In Crown Point, Mrs. Holley denied she had posed with the man who walked out of her jail after whittling a pistol from a block of wood. She said:

"Naturally, considering my job, I was among those present when Dillinger was brought to Crown Point."

Thieves 'Kil' 12 Bottles And Steal $1,000 Worth

CHICAGO, March 8.—(AP)—Somebody made off with $1,000 worth of rare liquors today from the national wine and liquor show, despite the presence of 100 guards and detectives.

It was taken from the roof bungalow of the Sherman hotel, where a package wrapping contest was held last night.

Convention officials suspected burglars but agreed with police that delegates might have been responsible. No burglar, police said, would have drunk a dozen bottles of their loot before carrying away the remainder.

Photographs were taken of a crowd of people, of whom I was one. A little later Judge William J. Murray, of criminal court at Crown Point, arranged to call a new grand jury and appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the escape. He said:

"This Dillinger case is beginning to smell."

Cummings showed reporters a photograph which he said was posed for by Sheriff Holley, Dillinger and others.

"This shows," he asserted, "a complete lack of a sense of responsibility or of propriety and common sense."

"The negligence of these people may result in the death of some honest person who is trying to effect Dillinger's capture."

Soon after the attorney-general had made his criticism, Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, ordered discontinuance of the Crown Point jail as a place of detention for federal prisoners. Eight federal prisoners now there will be removed.

Justice department agents are leading the search for Dillinger, now concentrated in Chicago. When the gunman first escaped, J. Edgar Hoover, of the investigation division, termed it an "outrage."

Assistant Attorney-General Joseph B. Keenan, of the criminal division, charged the jail guards had been "grossly and inexcusably negligent."

When informed of Cummings' statement today, Mrs. Holley said:

"The general system now seems to be to heap criticism after criticism upon me. However, I'll be here on my job until they kick me out."

Two guards on duty at the jail at the time Dillinger walked out have been arrested.

Estill, whose picture was published with Dillinger's arm about his shoulders, would not comment on Cummings' remarks, but did say he would oppose Judge Murray's attempt to name a special prosecutor.

"I am capable of handling the investigation," he said. "Appointment of another man would reflect on my character."

All Honor to St. Patrick!

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON.

This month of March we honor the Irish patron saint with gay parties that do credit to jolly Irish wit. Here we may let our imaginations roam far in table decorations and party menus that will tax neither our time nor our pocketbooks. A pretty table for either a luncheon or dinner may be set with white linen, simple dishes and clear or green glass. A Blarney Stone centerpiece is easy to make from a large stone spotted with paste or glue and sprinkled with finely chopped parsley. This moss-covered stone placed on a mirror will make a pleasant centerpiece. Individual favors, shamrock candy mints and chocolate stick shillalahs can be bought in almost any candy shop. The food, too, can be festive and timely with the following luncheon and bridge party suggestions:

ST. PATRICK'S DAY LUNCHEON.

Cream of Green Pea Soup (ready to serve) Parsley Potatoes
Savory Veal Rolls* Buttered Asparagus
Molded Relish* Baked Ham
Coffee Pistachio Ice Cream in Meringue Shells* Shamrock Mints

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BRIDGE.

Molded St. Patrick's Salad*
Deviled Shamrock Biscuit*
Rolled Sandwich Spread Sandwiches
Coffee
Shamrock Mints
Salted Nuts

*Indicates recipes given below.

Savory Veal Rolls—Cut 2 pounds veal outlet sliced 1-4 inch thick, into 6 pieces, having them about twice as long as they are broad. Make a dressing of 2 cups dry bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper and 6 preserved sweet midget gherkins, chopped, and spread a thin layer over each piece of veal. Roll and fasten with skewers or toothpicks. Dredge with flour and fry in hot butter until a golden brown. Pour 2 cups white sauce over the rolls, cover and bake at 400 degrees F. for 45 minutes, or until rolls are tender. Baste frequently with the sauce or turn rolls several times during baking.

Molded Relish—Dissolve 1 tablespoon plain gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water for 5 minutes. Add 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup India relish, 1 teaspoon sugar and a few drops green coloring, and pour into a shallow pan, having it 1-2 inch thick. Chill, cut with a shamrock cutter or in squares or pass on a small plate.

Pistachio Ice Cream in Meringue Shells—Add 1-4 teaspoon salt to 4 egg whites and beat until stiff. Fold in very gently, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup rice flakes. Drop by tablespoonfuls on sheet of waxed paper on a baking pan, and bake in a slow oven (about 275 degrees to 300 degrees F.) until delicately brown and crisp. This will take from 40 to 50 minutes depending upon the size of the meringues. When baked, take from the oven and lift from the paper at once. Cool and serve two meringues with pistachio ice cream between. Makes about 1 dozen meringue shells.

Molded St. Patrick's Salad—Soak 1 tablespoon plain gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water for about 5 minutes and dissolve in 1 cup boiling water. Add 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup pure vinegar, 1-4 teaspoon salt and a few drops green coloring. Chill until partially set and add 1-4 cup stuffed Spanish olives, sliced, 1-2 cup chopped pineapple, 1-2 cup nutmeats and 1-4 cup fresh cucumber pickle, chopped. Mold in individual molds and serve in nests of crisp lettuce with a garnish of mayonnaise and preserved green cherries.

Deviled Shamrock Biscuit—Pat biscuit dough very thin (about 1-4 inch) and shape with shamrock biscuit cutter. Spread with a thin layer of deviled ham, cover with another biscuit and bake in a moderate oven for 12 to 15 minutes. These are delicious served for luncheon or party.

Left-overs need not be a "complaint" dish if they are properly prepared. Many times a "made" dish tastes better than the original. It can be made attractive to look at, too. The French meat loaf is a good example. Any kind of left-over meat may be used. The remnants of the beef roast or a leg of lamb may be used nicely in the following recipe. This is a good thing to know about lamb, because so many housewives have the idea that left-over lamb is too much of a problem to be tackled.

A few capers mixed with the minced lamb or added to the gravy will give a "new" flavor to the dish.

French Meat Loaf.

For one pound cold minced beef allow two ounces raw liver. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, into this slice an onion and let it cook gently for ten minutes. Then remove the bits of onion with a fork. Now put in the liver, cut in fine pieces. Cook slowly for five minutes, then add enough stock or water to cover. Season with one-half teaspoon mixed spices. Add plenty of salt, but no pepper. Next, stir in the minced beef which has been mixed with a heaping tablespoon of flour. Put the pan over the flame and stir until the hash just boils. Add a little more liquid if necessary, and cook gently until the hash is warmed through.

This, then, is the hash which is used to make the "meat loaf." Cut the top crust off a new loaf of bread. Scoop out the inside, leaving only a hollow shell. Fill with the hash and put the top crust back. Pour the gravy over the loaf until the crust is well soaked. Put in a buttered tin and bake in a quick oven until the crust begins to brown. Slice down through the loaf and serve hot. To stretch the meat, crumbs from the loaf may be mixed with the hash, but this should be done at the time of warming the minced beef with the liver, else the bread will have a raw taste which is not desirable.

A GOOD SOUP ROUTS CHILL OF MARCH DAYS

On a blustery, chilly March day, is there anything more delicious than a bowl of rich, flavored, steaming hot soup? A nutritious soup, made with meat and vegetables, proves a whole meal in itself, and what better meal could you ask? Here are two

FLORIDA ACCOUNTANT KILLED BY GAS FUMES

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8.—(AP)—Francis M. Williams, 62, prominent certified public accountant here, was found dead at his residence today, overcome by gas. Police and firemen were attracted to the scene by an explosion which knocked out window panes in the kitchen and set fire to a curtain. Relatives expressed the belief that Williams, who was alone in his home at the time, lost consciousness after turning on the gas stove to prepare breakfast.

suggestions for soup dishes to counteract the wildest of March winds.

Scotch Broth.

Two and a half pounds of lamb from neck or breast and shank, 1-2 cup barley, about 1-2 quarts of water, 1-4 cup turnip, cubed; 1-4 cup carrot, cubed; 1 onion, diced; 1-4 cup celery, cubed; 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons fat, salt, pepper, 1 sprig parsley.

Separate the meat from the bone and cut into small pieces. Wrap bones in a piece of cheesecloth. Immerse meat and bones in cold water, heat to boiling, skim, add barley, cover and simmer about 1-2 hours. Remove bones, add vegetables and cook until they are tender. Combine flour with fat, add to soup, stir until slightly thickened and season with salt and pepper. Add a sprig of parsley finely chopped, just before serving.

German Soup Balls.

Three pounds soup meat, 2 quarts water, pepper, 4 eggs, flour, salt. Put the meat to cook in cold salted water. Simmer until meat is tender. Strain the broth and season with salt and pepper. Beat the eggs until light and add enough flour to make a thin batter. Add slowly to the stock, stirring constantly until it begins to thicken in small balls. Bring to a boil and serve immediately. The meat may be minced finely and returned to the broth, making it unnecessary to strain it. For variety, peas and carrots may be added.

LONE AVIATRIX LANDS IN MEXICO FROM U. S.

MIAMI, Fla., March 8.—(AP)—Flying alone in her fast land plane, Laura Ingalls, New York aviatrix, who hopped off from Miami today on a projected pleasure flight through Central and South America, landed safely at Meridia, Yucatan, Mexico, eight hours later, a wireless message received here stated.

Instead of stopping overnight at Havana as she originally had intended, the flyer altered her plans because of strike conditions in the Cuban capital and after refueling there headed out over the Yucatan channel, to Meridia, a distance of 500 miles.

... nor does she believe in "candy" tooth paste for her teeth

Pet superstitions of the past have no hold on her imagination. She is as grown-up about the care of her teeth as she is about her complexion. She chooses her dentifrice as she does face creams... as an aid to her beauty, health and charm.

When you ask yourself squarely why you use a "candy" tooth paste, your honest answer is usually "sweet flavor". Pebecco does not taste sweet. It has a fresh, clean-tasting tang. And it contains a precious ingredient, Potassium Chlorate, which makes it more effective for mouth health.

Recent nation-wide tests, conducted by recognized members of the dental profession, prove Pebecco's superiority over five other leading tooth pastes. Twins were chosen for these tests because their mouth conditions are so much alike. One Twin used Pebecco for 30 days; the other used one of the five other leading tooth pastes.

Pebecco, the tests proved, is more effective for whitening and polishing... more efficient in removing film and stains...hardening gums...and checking the mouth acids that are destructive to your teeth.

Buy a tube of Pebecco today and know for yourself the satisfaction of real mouth health... the pleasure of having sparkling, clean teeth.

Ex-Kaiser's Kin Visit Buckingham Palace

LONDON, March 8.—(UP)—For the first time since before the World War, a member of the family of former Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, was a guest today at Buckingham palace.

The Duke and Duchess of Brunswick had luncheon with King George and Queen Mary at the royal palace in London. The duchess is the former Kaiser's daughter.

Raymond Williams, said to be a friend of Floyd Collins and Jack Coppege, Atlanta bandits and escaped convicts, will also be placed in the lineup.

Two men who visited Williams at the city jail were also under arrest Thursday, to be placed in the lineup. They gave the names of James R. Hurron, of 975 Langley avenue, and J. B. Nabors, of 1293 Niles avenue. The two were arrested when they came to call on Williams in his cell, detectives said.

Suspected of auto theft, Benny Walker, 18-year-old negro, of 350 Robbins street, was brought in by officers to be held on "suspicion."

Leroy Davis, negro, was also held at the police station on a charge of chicken theft. Davis was peppered with shotgun shots early Thursday morning by T. B. Paxon, of 520 Whitehall terrace, who said he found the man in his hen house.

Sentence was deferred Thursday in the case of William Bryant, 18, who was found guilty by a jury of the burglary of the courtroom of Justice of the Peace W. S. Miller in the 1,511th district. On the plea of the boy's father, the court decided to investigate his record further and to sentence him today. The jury recommended that his crime be treated as misdemeanor which limits the sentence to one year.

Victor Pierce and Akin Martin, held in connection with the slaying of Stanley Dodge, tourist camp operator, were taken to Jonesboro Thursday to await action of the Clayton county grand jury. Pierce was identified as one of Dodge's assailants by an eyewitness to the holdup shooting which resulted fatally for the camp proprietor.

Many Are Restored to Life By Work of Local Firemen

R. B. Megee and G. D. Maddox (left to right), city firemen, are shown standing at the bedside of seven-week-old Bobbie Sills, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sills, of 974 Mauldin street. The baby's life was saved by Maddox and Megee with oxygen from an inhalator when the child was in grave danger of dying from double pneumonia. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

By FRANK DRAKE.
If one were seeking mainly chests on which to hang medals, he could find no better place to go than to the Atlanta fire department, and no two better men than G. D. Maddox and R. B. Megee.

Maddox and Megee are in charge of the salvage and rescue truck of the department, and in a little more than two years have been directly responsible for saving the lives of more than 100 persons.

The rescue work of the two men is largely done with an H. & H. inhalator, which apparatus practically brings back the dead with life-saving oxygen.

Bobbie Sills, 7-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sills, of 974 Mauldin street, is alive today because of the work of Maddox and Megee.

The infant was stricken with double pneumonia during the last few days of February and at 10 o'clock on the night of March 1 Maddox was called by the distraught parents to come with a supply of oxygen.

The fireman found the child almost dead when he arrived. There was no apparent respiration and the heart was beating so faintly it could not be detected. As a matter of routine Maddox applied the inhalator and in 20 minutes the child was breathing more easily.

Later in the night Maddox was called again. Two tanks of oxygen were given little Bobbie within several hours and for several days he constantly breathed it. Thursday the child was well on the road to health and the pneumonia which had threatened his life was almost gone. Because of his weakness after the terrific ordeal, the baby still is given straight oxygen daily at intervals on which to hang medals.

The inhalator was installed at the fire department in January of 1931 and since that time has become one of the most valuable instruments in rescue work. It supplanted the outmoded pulmotor and serves the purpose far better, because the pulmotor frequently caused great injury to the lungs of the patient.

Maddox and Megee learned the work of saving lives from the Red Cross and Maddox holds a life-saving diploma. Both are experts in artificial respiration and in the manipulation of the inhalator. The apparatus, which is expensive, was purchased by the city and a store of oxygen is constantly on hand at the fire department.

Not only do civilians receive the benefit of this remarkable machine but also firemen. Maddox and Megee have both administered to the firefighters when they were overcome by the noxious fumes of smoke and have revived a number of firemen who were strangled into unconsciousness by gases freed in explosions in fires.

On the day of the explosion at the Loeb-Apte Company, June 10, 1933, in which three men were killed and others injured, the two men gave oxygen to Assistant Chief Butler and to Fireman Wallace, both of whom were overcome while seeking to aid the badly injured men trapped in the basement of the building on Produce Row.

The service of the inhalator is free to the public and many are the calls brought by Mayor Max and Megee to come on an errand of mercy.

Death takes a holiday if they are called in a reasonable time and many of their rescues are dramatic.

"One of our hardest cases was that of little Janice Abrams, 20 months old, who fell in the fish pool," Maddox said Thursday.

"She was visiting with her mother, Mrs. Clayton Abrams, of Alabama, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mask, of 1430 West View drive, S. W., last summer. She was playing in the yard and was not missed for some time."

"Her mother called her and called. It was many minutes before they found her in the fish pond. When I got there she was unconscious and apparently dead but after using two tanks of oxygen she revived and in a few days was all right."

That is a typical case for Maddox and Megee. They answer the calls that come for them and in more than 75 per cent of the cases succeed in saving a human life that otherwise would be lost. Sometimes they are called too late, as in the instance in which a youth was drowned at Silver Lake a year and a half ago. The boy had been under water more than an hour and was not resuscitated, but in many other cases the two men have been able to revive persons given up for dead.

The firemen are kindly men and give willingly of their time in off hours to aid some person in distress. When little Myrtle Duncan, who lives on Kirkwood avenue, had double pneumonia in December of 1932, Maddox and Megee stayed with her day and night for nearly two weeks, constantly administering oxygen to the tortured lungs so that the child could breathe. Early 25 tanks of oxygen were given the baby. It recovered.

Other members of the fire department, who dangerously risk their lives on hundreds of occasions in fighting fires, have a feeling of safety from the knowledge that the inhalator is a part of the regular fire-fighting equipment. They have received relief many times with oxygen when their lungs were burning from the heavy smoke in which they are forced to work.

Maddox and Megee, however, say little of the rescues they have effected. Their capability is unquestioned and undoubted.

MISSISSIPPI HOUSE PASSES LIQUOR BILL

Taxes, Santee-Cooper Project Keep Virginia, S. C. Solons Busy.

By the Associated Press.
A hard liquor bill providing for sales through state-controlled stores in event the voters approve whisky in a referendum was adopted yesterday by the Mississippi house by an 81-to-39 vote.

The senate already had passed a similar bill, sidetracked by the house, and proponents of the wet measure said it would pass the upper body but drys said they were confident they could defeat it.

Meanwhile, the measure giving Clyde Collins, of Holly Springs, Miss., the right to spring the trap that will hang three negroes for an attack on his 17-year-old daughter, was transmitted to the house. It passed the senate yesterday and specifically gives sheriffs the right to deputize citizens of other counties. Collins does not live in the county where the negroes will hang.

In spite of a hostile bloc, the supporters of Governor Peery, of Virginia, rammed his million-dollar tax bills for schools through the senate. The house already had approved it. The governor said the new revenue was needed to assure a minimum school term.

Advocates of lower-priced automobile tags in South Carolina won a two-year fight when the house agreed to a conference report to cut the cost of licenses by 50 per cent next year. Common carriers and trucks over two tons are excepted.

The house refused to kill a measure providing for a huge hydro-electric development between the Santee and Cooper rivers. It has not yet passed.

MISSISSIPPI HOUSE PASSES LIQUOR BILL

JACKSON, Miss., March 8.—(AP)—A bill setting up a state controlled liquor store system which would operate only in the event of a hard liquor referendum was approved by the lower house of the Mississippi legislature tonight. The vote on final passage was 81 for and 39 against.

The bill would establish state-owned and operated liquor stores in county seats and towns of more than 2,500 population.

Mississippi's "hanging bill," drafted to enable Clyde Collins, of Holly Springs, Miss., to hang with his own hands three negroes convicted of criminally assaulting his 17-year-old daughter, tonight was ready for action by the lower house of the state legislature.

The measure, approved yesterday by the senate, was sent from the office of the secretary to the house clerk today.

TAX BILL FOR SCHOOLS PASSED IN VIRGINIA

RICHMOND, Va., March 8.—(AP)—Governor Peery's supporters today rammed through a stubborn senate the administration's $1,000,000 tax bill for schools.

The hostile bloc of the upper house, which stood between the bill that passed the house with only 15 dissenting votes and the governor's signature, finally, was beaten in a surprise attack late this afternoon after the proponents of the measure had failed to corral enough votes at the morning session.

The final senate vote was 25 to 12 against the bill, which was designed to raise $1,211,000 in new revenue, most of which Governor Peery said was necessary to assure a minimum public school term of eight months throughout the state.

CAROLINA HOUSE ACTS ON Santee-COOPER PLAN

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 8.—(AP)—In its first vote on the Santee-Cooper project, the house today refused, 64 to 35, to kill a state enabling act, while a 50 per cent auto tag reduction next November 1 was enacted by consent of both branches.

The senate finance committee concentrated upon a third major issue of the session, appropriations, and considered downward revision of the $6,784,000 supply bill recommended to it last week.

Advocates of cheaper automobile licenses won a two-year fight when the house adopted a free conference report on the tag bill. It was the last legislative obstacle to be surmounted, as the senate approved the report last night.

The act, providing a flat 50 per cent cut in tag fees for all motor vehicles except common carriers and trucks over two tons, would take effect at the beginning of the next tag year November 1.

MAN CRITICALLY SHOT IN FAMILY QUARREL

M. J. Padgett, 27, of 547 Atlanta avenue, S. E., was arrested and lodged in jail on a blanket charge of suspicion Thursday night following the shooting of W. J. Grogan, of the same address. Padgett told police he shot Grogan after the latter had beaten his wife, Mrs. Lucy Grogan.

Grogan was rushed to Grady hospital with three bullet wounds in his abdomen and doctors said his condition was critical. Padgett is a brother-in-law of the wounded man, he told officers.

ROBERT S. PERRY DIES SEATED IN AUTOMOBILE

Robert S. Perry, 55, of 395 North avenue, N. E., a collector for the National Life and Accident Insurance Company, died Thursday afternoon in his automobile at Oakdale station on the Marietta road. Mr. Perry, feeling an attack of illness coming on, had driven into a garage and parked, apparently intending to rest for a while, it was said.

A coroner's jury in Cobb county Thursday night returned a verdict finding that Mr. Perry came to his death from cerebral hemorrhage. In addition to his wife, Mr. Perry is survived by a daughter, Miss Julia Perry; two sons, Randall S. Perry, of Atlanta, and Anthony C. Perry, of Augusta; and two brothers, Leslie H. Perry, of Detroit, Mich., and G. E. Perry, of Auburn, Ky. Mr. Perry was born in Kentucky. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

Missing as Florida Hearing Comes Up.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 8.—(P)—Governor Dave Sholtz, who had scheduled a hearing today on extradition of Lonnie Parrish to Georgia, postponed it when Parrish and his counsel failed to appear.

Mrs. Agnes Bremer, of the governor's staff, said Will O. Murrell, Jacksonville attorney, informed her that Parrish, who said he was retained to represent Parrish, informed her Parrish apparently had disappeared.

His bond was not returnable until Saturday, however, reports from Jacksonville said. Parrish was wanted in Valdosta, Ga., for robbery.

When Parrish still was unreported here this afternoon, Governor Sholtz signed an order for his extradition to Georgia, if and when officers locate him.

Panhandling Is Declared on Wane As Result of Transient Bureaus

MACON, Ga., March 8.—(P)—Panhandling has been broken up, or "should be," through establishment of transient bureaus by the government, it was said here by Miss Helen Mawer, associate field representative of the bureaus.

She said there was "no excuse for anyone to go begging on the streets for money."

The bureaus are likely to stay as permanent establishments, Miss Mawer said, although no definite statement has been received from national headquarters concerning their future. "It is a problem which cannot be handled locally, or by the states. It is a national one."

The fact that the government has endeavored to help transients has not caused an increase in the number of wanderers over the country, Miss Mawer said. She has been in close contact with the work being done by the bureaus in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida. Her headquarters are in Atlanta.

"The aim of the government in establishing these bureaus has been to anchor floaters in one place," she said, "either by returning them to their residences, if they can maintain their own existence there, or to keep them where they are and provide work for them."

FORD LAYS PROGRESS TO DISSATISFACTION

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

FORD MYERS, Fla., March 8.—(P)—Henry Ford, 70-year-old automobile manufacturer, who made a fortune by sticking to one idea, and says he is willing to spend his fortune to improve that idea, believes the world is run by dissatisfied people.

"President Roosevelt is a dissatisfied man," said Mr. Ford. "If he was not dissatisfied, he would not attempt Herculean experiments to improve existing conditions. If he had not been dissatisfied with the first automobiles, they would have been discarded and the horse would have taken their place."

"When dissatisfaction leads to improvement, conditions and products are bettered. That is why I am glad to observe that so many people are dissatisfied. Maybe they are doing something about it. Maybe they will help the leaders with vision enough to try to build a better world for all people to live in."

"I am glad that people are getting over the machine age bugaboo. The more we improve machinery, the more skilled men are needed to make and operate the machines. Better machines make better workmen. More skilled workmen receive higher wages and this improves the scale of living."

"Labor not capable of growing in skill will find the efficiency of the machine has no place in modern industry. These men should go back to the country and learn to make their living—become independent and self-sustaining."

"The back-to-the-land movement will take care of unskilled labor. It will also bring more happiness to a skillful man who is dissatisfied with city life. A skilled man in the country can find plenty of ways to use his skill profitably. The person who can't find work in the city is out of place in the country. If they cannot find a place in the highly specialized industry of cities, they will be better off out of the cities. In the country, they will become individuals and not unimportant cogs."

TARIFF BILL IS VITAL TO FARMS—WALLACE

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—Secretary Wallace told the house ways and means committee today it would be a "practicable impossibility" for congress to handle tariff negotiations in the "delicate way" necessary under the administration's proposal for reciprocal trade agreements.

His view, expressed in urging quick enactment of the measure giving President Roosevelt full power to negotiate the tariff pacts promptly struck fire from the republican committee members.

"We've been doing it for a hundred years," Representative Bachrach, New Jersey, told him. "I do say that's a pretty broad statement that congress can't handle it."

"This," said Wallace, "is a different situation from those lovely days." Cites U. S. Surpluses.

Addressing himself to the question from the standpoint of agriculture, Wallace said it was "exceedingly desirable that foreign purchasing power for our agricultural surpluses be restored."

Wallace said to "restore this purchasing power and thereby to increase the market for American farm products exports would mean that the crop acreage control with other administration could be dropped."

"If," he said, "in the judgement of the congress it cannot be, we'd like to know it so we can nerve ourselves up to continue restricting surplus acreage."

The agricultural secretary said he thought it was "important for congress to realize that high tariff causes unemployment just as surely as low tariff is just one of where the unemployment will be."

Earlier, another cabinet member, Secretary Hull, had discussed for two hours the administration's views. Republicans challenged Hull on the point of the most-favored-nation treaties this country makes with other nations, under which trade benefits granted one country must be extended to others.

Hull, reflecting the previously expressed attitude of the state department on this question, explained that when agreements were based on certain products similar tariff concessions would be extended other countries for those specific products if they were produced in those countries.

Hull's testimony produced these ideas: The supreme court would hold the bill valid if it came to a test before that tribunal.

The major objective of the measure was to "reopen the old and seek new outlets for our surplus products."

Virtually every one of the 65 nations had erected trade barriers against the export of American goods through duties, sanitary requirements and other restrictions.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT IN WAYCROSS AREA

Federal Building Soon To Be Started; Bank To Be Reopened.

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 8.—(P)—Prospects for an early start on construction of a new federal building coupled with extensive building already under way and reopening of the First National bank guaranteeing to depositors of the old bank 50 per cent of their money, has given this city a brighter outlook.

Plans for reopening the First National bank have been approved and final arrangements are being made to open the institution with $100,000 capital and a reserve of $20,000. The bank has been closed since the national banking holiday.

Construction of the postoffice and federal building annex will entail an outlay of $130,000.

A general improvement in business volume of merchants during January and February and brighter prospects for agriculture have added to the optimism of the section. A survey of business houses in Waycross disclosed gains ranging from 30 to 50 per cent over January of last year. February's business was correspondingly good.

Employment conditions have been aided by development of Winona park 200 men at work during part of the time.

A truck marketing center is planned in connection with the agricultural program being sponsored by Dr. R. J. Heyde, county agent, and Miss Oia M. Bullington, home demonstration agent. Acreage is being pledged for beans, corn and cucumber crops and heavy acreage has been planted in cabbage. The agricultural program includes establishment of a packing house and truck farmers of surrounding counties are expected to use this city as a grading, packing and marketing point.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

This is beauty facial No. 3. You can hear about them all and take your choice I know by personal experience that a facial that one woman likes another woman does not like at all. That's why I am giving you a variety of face facials. Often business women—and most women seem to be—careless women today—tend to get to a beauty parlor and don't quite make it, so rather than go out looking tired and frayed (and no one excuses this appearance today) they give themselves a quick facial for whatever the special occasion may be.

No. 3. This is for the woman who wouldn't think of giving herself a facial without a soap-and-water-wash first. She should do it with a pure soap—any one she prefers. Then while her face is still damp up from the wash she should apply a fine, pure rich cream. I can tell you the one I used with this treatment if you are interested. Pat the cream in gently. Always pat cream in and always do it gently. Now if you have a few minutes to spare leave the cream on. Take two pads of cotton and take what I think is one of the finest eye lotions. Put the bottle to the cotton pads and ask them. Lie down, leaving the cream on your face and the pads of wet cotton over your eyes.

When you could cream your face don't put the cream so near the eyes that it gets into them. It's a most uncomfortable feeling, and if it gets in there it bleaches qualities it usually smarts. Keep it out of your eyes. If the cream has got too near the eyes, wipe it off with a bit of the cotton and eye lotion before you apply the pads.

The pads won't give you any sensation at all about the eyes until they are on and then you will feel them at least two or three minutes. Then you will have the fresh feeling that you get from menthol—a cooling, soothing sensation. Leave them on as long as you wish, but don't take them off for at least ten minutes if you can spare that much time.

Now wipe off the cream (gently) with tissues, tossing them into the waste basket as you use them. Use a fine skin-toning lotion that closes the pores. It has a little camphor in it, but it is not drying. Pat that on with a bit of cotton.

When that has dried you can apply powder and makeup if you like. I don't. I first use a bit of one of my favorite finishing creams. It is hardly a cream. I think I'd call it a powder base because it has no grease in it. It is a mixture with a heavenly odor, spicy and fresh. It comes in a tiny jar and you always put a few drops of water in it after you have used some, and put the top on the jar. When you want to use it again it is just the right consistency. I can use it by putting water on the palm of the hand and then dipping the finger into the tiny jar, getting a dab of the mixture. Put that into your wet palm and rub your hands together. It gives a wonderful finish and dries almost immediately. Of course you have already fed the pores with cream, so it can't dry the skin. Then put on your makeup. If your skin is very dry use an almost liquid foundation which contains something to keep the skin from drying.

I'm especially fond of this facial. It's so rich and elegant after I use it. There is this fresh scent and the white, soft look about the skin which is unquestionably what every woman wants.

Do You Know As Much As Your Cat?

She's a knowing cat. She asks for little—just her meals, a saucer of milk and a place in the sun. She gets plenty of sleep and exercise. She never worries, never frets. What is the result? Such vitality and resistance that we say, "Cats have nine lives."

What does your cat do when she is not well? She eats catnip, if she can find it. She eats grass and certain green plants to which her instinct leads her.

Your cat takes herbs for a tonic. Did you ever stop to think that Old Mother Nature, who supplies the herbs necessary to your cat's health, has also provided the herbs necessary to your own well-being?

You don't have to hunt for them as the cat does. The herbs you need are skillfully blended and compounded in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, an old-fashioned tonic that will help to restore your strength and energy.

Whose Fault?

Children who are

A boy or girl may be warmly clad, dry shod, and ever so careful, yet catch a cold after another. Do you know what's to blame? Lack of vitality. A sluggish system makes any child an easy victim for cold. The youngster whose bowels have moved for two days will contract cold quicker than the one who forgotten his rubbers. A powerful cathartic that opens the bowels very pores is just as bad. The proper treatment is described on the right:

BRADENTON, Fla., March 8.—(P)—Ernie Orsatti, one of the Cardinals' four holdouts, conferred with President Sam Breadon today and later said he was confident an agreement would be reached.

Manager Frankie Frisch sent his pitchers, catchers and infielders through two long drills today.

Indian Hurlers Serve Fast Ones.

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—(P)—For the first time since they established camp, the pitching staff of the Cleveland Indians today began lifting some fast ones over the plate to test their speed. ## Golfers Quit Plus Fours When Lady Tourists Donned 'Em

It was the fat lady tourists from Iowa who caused it. I mean the practical disappearance of the golf bloomer from the golf courses. Only a few survive where once there was hardly a leg not half-covered with baggy plus fours.

"The boys" stood for garage workers adopting the golf bloomer as the proper clothing to wear at work.

And they didn't object when the bond salesmen and real-estate vendors in Florida's boom days wore golf clothes.

But when the lady tourists from Iowa put them on and started walking down the Main streets of the world it was too much.

The plus fours began to fade. Now only the old guard sticks to them. The others have gone back to straight pants.

Out at East Lake yesterday, as the visiting professionals tuned up for the start of the Atlanta Metropolitan open this morning, there were a lot of youngsters around in flannel trousers and gayly colored sweaters.

They were tramping over the sward, and very beautiful sward, too, and giving the scene a picturesque cast. It will be even better today.

One had to look very closely to find a pair of the old-fashioned bloomers, or plus fours.

It is said that as soon as every golfer has seen a lady tourist from Iowa, clad in golf knickers, knickers will disappear from the links.

Frankly, I think it is an excellent thing—this adoption of the pants for the bloomers. The male leg was never a thing of beauty.

And the golf courses used to provide some spectacles, in the matter of the male shank and starving calves, that were downright distressing. The parade of masculine legs in the Saturday foursomes was pretty awful to see.

And so, it is probably all for the best. The male shank was never anything to look at, at that. But neither is a fat lady tourist from Iowa.

CREAVY LIKES WINTER TOURNAMENTS.

Tom Creavy, who won the west coast P. G. A. championship, and who has been shooting well all winter, had a practice round at East Lake yesterday.

"The winter tournaments are great for one's game," said Creavy. "One gets all sorts of tournament competition. And it makes a game."

"But more important than anything else is the fact that it's great for one mentally. It gives one a mental balance for medal competition."

Creavy, who is from Albany, N. Y., has had a good winter. He is one of the younger professionals. They have, the younger ones, just about crowded the veterans out of the picture.

The real reason why Hagen and Sarazen are playing in only a few tournaments is that the youngsters have just about shot them off the courses.

They look astoundingly young, the winter field, when taken in the mass. And they are. Most of them began as caddies and have literally learned the game from the ground up. And the winter tournament schedule is a harsh school.

WILLIE OGG'S THEORY.

Willie Ogg thinks a couple of factors contribute to the making of a veteran of the golfer who slips past thirty and which sees him practically out of competition when he is nearing forty.

"In England," said Ogg, "the player who is 40 and 50 years old is regarded simply as an experienced player and not as a veteran player."

"Over here the golf reporters begin speaking of our players as veterans when they are about 26 or 28 years old. That is a psychological factor. A fellow begins early to regard himself as being in need of crutches."

"And another, and perhaps the most important," said Ogg, "is the fact that no one plays as much as do the American professionals."

"They burn themselves out quicker than an English pro. One of these winter tournaments is a severe strain."

THE OLD DIGESTIVE APPARATUS.

"Where," I asked Willie Ogg, "does this burning out begin in the golfer? His legs?"

BOSS STONEHAM SPIKES RUMORS OF GIANT SALE

Club To Continue as Before McGraw's Death. Widow To Aid.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—Regardless of rumors that have flown thick and fast since the death of John J. McGraw, the New York Giants are not for sale, never have been on the market, and will not be unless some extraordinary, unrefusable offer comes along.

"We might just as well get this straight now," said Charles A. Stoneham, president and majority stockholder of the World Champions, in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press today. "No offers have been made. I expect none. I would not consider selling the Giants unless so much money were offered that no sensible man could refuse."

Rumors that the Giants had been sold have for years been a regular spring, fall and winter feature on the baseball calendar. They have been tales of former Mayor Jimmy Walker dickered for control; George M. Cohan, of Broadway, syndicates of various kinds, and this year C. Y. Whitney and even the former heavy-weight champion, Gene Tunney, have been mentioned as possible purchasers of the World Championship property.

ONE OFFER IN 1919.

"Actually," said Stoneham, "just one legitimate offer has been made me for the club since 1919, when McGraw persuaded me to purchase control. About 10 years ago Tex Rickard made me a proposition of $2,500,000 for 51 per cent of the stock."

"I refused it, because his interest in baseball was secondary. He wanted control of the Polo Grounds so that he could change the stands and the field around to make it a perfect place for boxing for Madison Square Garden. I couldn't agree to that."

"About three months ago a group of men sounded me out again, the first time I had been approached since the Rickard deal. I looked up their financial standing and immediately dropped the matter."

"As for Tunney, I haven't seen or heard from him for four or five years."

There has been no change in the situation surrounding the directorate of the club since the death of McGraw, manager of the team for 31 years, who with Frances X. McQuade controlled the minority share of stock. It has been commonly understood that an agreement existed between Stoneham, McGraw and McQuade, the latter at odds for years with the first two, that the unanimous consent of all three was necessary to dispose of any stock.

TO KEEP HER SHARE.

"Mrs. McGraw," Stoneham said, "is anxious to retain her share of the property and continue as we did in the past. She will take no active part in the club's affairs, however. It is very valuable property, with the team holding the world championship and the Polo Grounds bringing in considerable additional revenue in rentals for boxing matches and professional football games. We would be foolish to dispose of it for anything but a tremendous offer."

Despite Rickard's offer of $2,500,000, which was turned down, the sum frequently mentioned today as the one Stoneham would accept for the club is $1,800,000. This would buy only the players and National League franchise. The Giants lease the Polo Grounds from the Cogan estate.

Stoneham launched at the new conception of the Giants' value.

"No one has heard of that kind of money for many years," he said.

All Favorites Are Winners At Albany

ALBANY, Ga., March 8.—(P)—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, who won the medal in the qualifying round Tuesday, and who today won the Radium Springs women's invitation golf tournament championship today with a 7-and-6 triumph over Mrs. C. R. McCubbin, of Kansas City, by the same margin of Mrs. Hill's victory.

Miss Kathleen Gannam, a young Kenton star, who finished second in the round Tuesday, and who today won the Radium Springs women's invitation golf tournament championship today with a 7-and-6 triumph over Mrs. C. R. McCubbin, of Kansas City, by the same margin of Mrs. Hill's victory.

In the semi-finals tomorrow Mrs. Lippitt meets Miss Gannam, the French champion, while Mrs. Hill opposes Miss Bauer.

After winning from Mrs. Tift, Mrs. Hill finished out her round to establish a new Atlanta open, howard course with a 75, three strokes above men's par.

Tall Tales Are Piling Up As Contest End Nears

The colored boy around the office walked into the sanctum of the hunting and fishing contest editor of The Constitution yesterday and stopped short.

"Mistuh McGill, I just can't keep dis here office in order no mo' because everywhere I look dere's stacks of lettus on dat liars' contest," he said.

"Lawsy I see a lot of letters and stuff piled around in my time, but dey ain't nothing like this. If it is all right with you, I'll just come back after dey kids coming in and try to clean up den."

And that really is an accurate description of the response to the popular contest. Charley Jordan, of Monticello, Ga., one of the judges, dropped into the office yesterday. He was amazed at the number of letters received.

"I can see," Mr. Jordan said, "that we judges are going to have no time on our hands when the contest ends on March 15."

Osark Ripley and Trammell Scott are the other judges.

The following story from W. L. Farmer, of Atlanta, is an example of the tales being received:

Stars Await Start of Tourney

KING TO MEET GERMAN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—Two heavyweight fighters, each hopeful of getting a shot at Primo Carnera's title, return tonight to Madison Square Garden, following a long layoff, tomorrow night when King Levinsky, of Chicago, and Walter Neusel, of Germany, meet in a 10-round bout.

"The King," who fights around 205 pounds, will enter the ring with a 10-pound pull in weights over Neusel, who tipped the scales at 195 for his fight with Impellitteri in December.

The two battlers completed their training today with light workouts. Levinsky, who fights around 205 pounds, will enter the ring with a 10-pound pull in weights over Neusel, who tipped the scales at 195 for his fight with Impellitteri in December.

He found the wind blowing strongly at East Lake and the cold threatening to chase away the prospects of spring. The wind will add a few strokes to the scores at East Lake. The boys have been breaking par with such regularity that old East Lake appeared to be softening up.

I found George Sargent, the club professional, completely unflinched. "Practice rounds are different from the game," said Sargent. "There will be some good scores. But I rather fancy par will stand up well enough."

Sargent believes that, with the wind blowing, about a 287 will be good enough to win the Atlanta open. Howard Beckett, testing the wind, guessed a score somewhere between 285 and 290.

There is always the possibility, of course, that one of "the boys" will get warm and come home well ahead of the field. Paul Runyan, Tommy Creavy, Whiffy Cox or any one of a half dozen others are fully capable of hammering the par figures after the course. But until it is done, 287 figure looks best.

East Lake was fairly well closed Thursday. Keith Conway, George Sargent, the committee charge, arranged the pairings more than 130 golfers, including a cream of the Georgia amateur and the winter golfing field.

Tickets are most reasonable, but $2.20 for the three days of play. Look at one of the professional stars, well on his game and a strong, is worth that to any golfer dict.

SARGENT, OGG, TERWILLIGER, START TOURNEY

Tournament Draws Country's Leading Golfers for $2,000 Prize.

By Roy White.

With more than 120 of the country's outstanding professionals and amateurs entered, Atlanta's first annual Metropolitan open golf championship will open today on the No. 1 East Lake course. It will be a 72-hole medal play affair with the final 36 holes slated for Sunday.

Paul Runyan, the leading money winner of the year, heads a great field of professionals and amateurs here for the tournament. Willie McFarlane, Phil Perkins, Al Espinosa, Johnnie Golden and a host of other well-known "names" are entered.

Willie Ogg, former East Lake professional and inventor of the "Ogg" method of play, George Sargent, East Lake professional and winner of the national open in 1929, and John Terwilliger, medalist in the city amateur last summer, will start the fireworks at 10 o'clock.

They will be followed at 10:05 by Eddie Miller, Gadsden (Ala.) pro and former Southeastern Professional champion, Tommy Wilson, Ansley Park professional, and Dave Black, former Georgia amateur champion.

PRIZE OF $2,000.

And from then on through the early afternoon threesomes will leave the starting tee at five-minute intervals in quest of the $2,000 prize money and medals.

Members of the tourney advisory committee and the Junior Chamber of Commerce tourney committee Thursday night announced that summer rules will be in force throughout the 72-hole play and the regular East Lake club rules will be in force when those of the United States Golf Association cannot be applied.

Following today's 18-hole play, Saturday and the remaining 36 set for Sunday morning and afternoon. The 50 low professionals and those trying for 60th place and the 15 low and trying amateurs will make up the list for the final 36 holes.

An additional 28 professionals and some 200 amateurs were added to the entry list late Thursday afternoon and at least a dozen or more are expected to arrive early today and participate in the tourney.

OUTSTANDING ENTRIES.

Outstanding in the Thursday arrivals were Bill McElhannon, New York; Paul Runyan, New York; Abe and Al Espinosa, Mike Turnesa, Harry Cooper, who tied Armour for the national open in 1929 and lost in the play-off; Victor Chezzi, Rumson, N. Y.; Frank Walsh, Morrie Dutra, Horton Smith, John Revolta, Sam Parks Jr., William McFarlane, who won from Bobby Jones in the national open play-off in 1925; Phil Perkins, Joe Turnesa, who finished second to Jones in the open in 1926; Arnold Means, Nashville; Frank Stevenson, south-eastern P. G. A. champion of Savannah; Al Watrous, Michigan; Red Gann, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Billy McWilliams, Georgia amateur champion of Rome; Floyd Jefferson, Baltusol, N. J.; Tom Wright, Knoxville, Tenn., and Jack Toomer, Hendersonville, N. C., were among the late amateur entries, who hit a few in the wind Thursday afternoon.

OTHER STARS.

There will be an outstanding golfer to leave the starter's tee every few minutes and the spectators can choose their own favorites to follow. A champion or record holder of some kind is included in every threesome, giving the spectators a chance to see some of the best competitive golf of the year. The field is much stronger than many of the winter tourneys in which the players will rank with the best in the south this year.

"Bill" will have the honor at every tee in a threesome starting at 10:40 o'clock. The players are Bill Wilson, Bobby Jones, who was pro; Bill Kaiser, amateur from Louisville, Ky., and Bill Terrell, Capital City amateur.

In the practice rounds Thursday, only early starters reaped a harvest of low scores, for those who

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—

Strength of United States government securities gave the bond market a rather pleasing appearance today despite the mildly irregular tendencies displayed by corporate issues.

The day's turnover amounted to $14,870,000, per value, against $13,888,000 yesterday. The average for 90 domestic corporate loans eased one-tenth of a point.

The upturn in the government section was attributed largely to the favorable implications of the treasury's March 15 financing, which, much to the surprise of most of the financial district is to be continued to the refunding of some $400,000,000 of certificates. Estimates of the March offering had ranged from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

The inference drawn by some bankers from the modest new offerings of 4-year 3 percent treasury notes was that an advantageous exchange plan would be proposed to holders of the $1,000,000,000 called Liberty Four 4-1/4s which fall due next month.

The revival of interest in the listed government was reflected in the expanded volume of trading in this section. Some $3,500,000 of these loans changed hands compared with $1,800,000 yesterday. Gains ranged from 2 3/4 to 1 1/2 to 1/2.

The called Liberty issue advanced 5/32 to 100 1/2.

Minor advances were the rule in the rail, utility and industrial divisions. Foreign obligations were quiet.

Bankers' Acceptances
Rates Are Lowered

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—

Yield rates on bankers' acceptances were lowered 1/4 of 1 percent for all maturities today.

By this decline rates were put back to approximately the low levels prevailing near the end of January, 1933, which were the minimums in the history of bill trading.

The cut in yield rates, it was explained by the American Acceptance Council, was due to the fact that the supply of bills available in the market was small in comparison with buying in the hands of dealers.

With the lowered rates it was felt that the banks might be willing to part with some of their bills since sales at the new rates would be profitable.

For 30-to-90-day bills the new rate is 3-8 of 1 percent bid, 1-4 of 1 percent asked; for four months, 5-8 bid, 1-2 asked; five to six months, 5-8 bid, 1-2 asked.

"No More Women," which opens today at the Paramount, brings the two classic roughnecks, Victor McLaglen and George Raft, back to the screen in a wrangling, fighting production reminiscent of their earlier successes.

Eddie outsmarts him by finding the key to a coat pocket on the cap of his body.

"No More Women," in addition to its riotous comedy, offers a generous dose of action and adventure, none the least of which is the fight between the two roughnecks in the underwater scenes, including a fight to the death on the bottom of the sea.

For the most part, the picture is as good as the first, the foremost character in Lowe's "The Mystery of Mr. X" of things, is altogether delightful to behold. Minna Gombell, cast in a supporting role, is a fine comedienne.

All three theaters have announced interesting subjects while Jimmy Beers is still performing wonders at the Fox organ.

"Wonder Bar," the new feature starting today at the Fox, has been awaited with exceptional eagerness, the story of its gorgeous ensembles, clever plot and smart comedy have preceded it from the First National studios. Special interest centers in the sets for the song "Going to Heaven on a Mule," which are said to be the most elaborate ever seen in the picture. The sailors' interest in the picture is more interesting in that the picture she holds on their lives than in their welfare, likewise gives a realistic and entertaining portrayal.

On the short feature program, Harry Leroy, the Broadway comedian star and Mitzie Mayfair are seen in "Use Your Imagination," which, with "Hollywood Parade" and "The Great Complete on Parade" and Fox new complete an unusually good program.

A "Mule" number are probably the final word in elaboration, underlining the close for the song, "Wonder Bar." Vast vistas are unfolded to the eye, with great mirrors adding to their tremendous scope. And the music for the entire picture is superb. While the dancing of Del Rio and Cortez is fit for a floor show in any man's cabaret. The scenes are laid by the way, in the "Wonder Bar," luxurious bar and cabaret in Paris. Clever shots subjects on the screen, with Jimmy Beers providing another of his popular organologies, complete the program.

Montgomery at Grand
In "Mystery of Mr. X"

Robert Montgomery is seen as a young thief who turns detective for love in "The Mystery of Mr. X," which comes Friday to Loew's Grand theater. It is a debonair and exciting film, with the engaging Montgomery at top form, and with a supporting cast including Lewis Stone, Elizabeth Allan, Ralph Forbes and Henry Stephenson. Edgar Selwyn directed.

"The Mystery of Mr. X" is a thriller worthy of this description, for there are many exciting incidents throughout and the climax is tense and startling. It is the story of a young thief who has to aid the police in their search for a notorious murderer. This murderer has been ter-horizing London for several weeks, killing, policemen on duty. He is known only as Mr. X, and on the day before one of his crimes, he notifies the London papers of his intenbeing Mr. X. Boldly, therefore, he schemes to meet the officials of Scotland Yard, and to discuss with them his "theories" of the murderer and the thief. This plan meets with con-considerable success, thanks to the daughter of Scotland Yard's commissioner. The girl and Montgomery are romantically attracted to each other at once.

WINTER.

Outside the house it was storming. A busy downfall of flakes that the wind blew lightly across acres of old snow left from December. Drifts piled up over the steps and over the sawdust banking that covered the sills. Fence posts were hidden, and the rails; only a few apple trees in the back field and the pine in the corner at the end of the lane struck black lines on the whitening air, while other pines and scattered hardwood trees surrounded the farm at a little distance, a smutted circle darker than the heavy, late afternoon sky.

Inside, all the rooms but one were cold and closed, the comforters in stiff heaps on the beds, the windows of the parlor and sitting room thick with spiraled frost. The women and children sat in the kitchen. Here light came earlier than to the rest of the house, for the bars shut out the sunset light from the ell, but it was not yet lamp time, and the girl at the dark end of the cookstove peeled and sliced her apples with swift, firm strokes to finish them before it should be. The little woman in the rocker by the north window held her sewing high and twirled at it, her sunken mouth pinched with concentration. The children, one fat with red braids and big new front teeth, the other younger, a sober small boy in overalls, sat on their heels before the couch cutting figures from a mail-order catalog and assembling them into families.

"Shutting down awful early to-night," the woman said. "Time they was getting home, ain't it? Lois May hadn't ought to be out in this night air; her throat the way it is after that cold."

"They'll be right along," the girl answered.

She rose to put wood on the fire. Flames, shooting up brightly toward her face, showed it round and serene, with gray eyes and light hair pinned in smooth braids about her head. Her arm, crooked to shake the lid into place, was bare to the elbow and stout, her hands quick and sure. She went toward the sink room for a saucerpan. The apples were ready for stewing.

"That's pretty, ma," she said. "I don't see how you ever do it so fine."

"Well, I've always been called a very good hand at tuckering," the woman said. "I know when Lois May was born folks up to Kezar Falls thought she had the prettiest things of any young one around. I'm different from some. I take a little pride."

She stroked the strip of white rayon smooth across her lap, regarding it with anxiety, her eyelids swollen, her heavy, pale red hair sliding low on her neck.

"What's all the commotion down the road?" the girl asked.

She stopped by a window and peered out, holding the basin of apples balanced against her hip. Through the snow which whirled between the house and the road and the damp flakes clinging to the glass it was not easy to tell what passed by at this time of day. Still, anything that stirred except the snow, was a wonder and had not escaped her as she glanced out.

The children came running and squeezed in between her knees and the low window ledge.

"Is it a shanty, Jen? Is it a Frenchman's shanty being hauled?" Sometimes the choppers moved their houses from wood lot to wood lot two or three times throughout a winter, often with women nursing babies by the windows as they rode along. At these wanderings the farmers and their families looked on with curiosity and high contempt.

"There, I can't see," the mother said, standing too, "enough to know."

"It's not a shanty, Bun," Jen told the little girl. "But it's probably Frenchmen's folks on the move. It looks like a load of furniture. It's pretty big for that one horse in this going, ma. He'll never get far to-night."

"Well, that's the Frenchman of it all right," the mother said grimly. "That's as well as they can plan."

Yes, now I can make out some chairs, tied on the back without a chair, covered in green stuff. This wet will start the rounds in them."

"I guess so," Jen agreed, then lifted her head to listen.

"I believe I hear old Bob. . . . You put on your jacket, John, and I'll light the lantern and you can take it out to father. I guess it's dark enough in the tie-up tonight. . . . Bun, you go with John and carry the milk pails down."

Cora Shaw had taken a hand lamp and gone upstairs to put away the white rayon. For a minute Jen was alone in the kitchen. She took quiet steps between the stove and the table, cellarway and sink room, wasting none of them, a stocky figure in a dark wool dress and bright pink apron. Many things she reached for without looking at them, so accustomed was she. Now and then her glance slid about the room, not aware and yet not unaware of the year-old tulip paper on the walls, the faded border around the new calendar, the black stove with a fat baby engraved on the shelf over the table, the sagging couch with its flowered pillows, the worn, reddish chairs, the tall woodbox, the geraniums in the windows, the smoky fragrance of the fried ham, the yellow shine of the lamplight on the dishes.

There was still more here which she could not even see. Sometimes she described, but which she was not here, aware of, much that was a part of the room and also a part of her. She had been mistress of this house since her ninth year, and she was 19 now. The coming of a stepmother six years ago had changed nothing. This was Jen's kitchen. She brought a pitcher of milk from the cellar, briskly stirring in the risen cream with a big spoon, and set it on the table.

"Jen! Jen, can you open the door?" She let in a slim, dark girl in a red crocheted cap and short, brown corduroy coat, with a plaid shawl worn over all and pinned under her chin, and her arms full of books and boxes.

"Well!" Jen exclaimed. "I guess you're loaded, Lois May, scupperns all in under."

"I've got the darlingest hat," the girl said in a husky, excited voice. "It's that brown straw of Margaret's, but we stole it and she'll let it over today, and Mil had a yellow feather she gave me to put on it. They said it was lucky for me feathers had come in again, for they've got quite a few were their Aunt Grace's. And Margaret gave me some silk to make a scarf. That's yellow, too. Look!"

She threw the shawl and coat and cap on the couch and rummaged through the boxes to produce a narrow length of yellow crepe and twist it around her neck. She was taller than Jen, but younger, not over 16, with small, well-made features and a long bob that had been waved with an iron. Her eyes were deep blue, narrow and slightly slanting, her skin smooth and dusky and she had brought a smell of perfume into the room.

"Now you're fine, I must say," Jen declared admiringly. "Ma! Ma, come along down before we freeze and see what the girls give Lois May! It looks as if it would pay to send her visiting every day."

She went back to her supper and while the other two fingered and noised and talked she set on biscuits to steam and tasted the apples to be sure it was sweet enough. Lois May had also four yards of lace, three fancy handkerchiefs, a string of amber glass beads and a new tablet of scratch paper in her boxes. She displayed these with an air of triumph.

"Well, now, I'm sure Mil and Margaret went to a good deal of pains," said Mrs. Shaw. She added: "If your own folks was all as interested to see you get ahead as George's wife, and Margaret, too, even if she ain't even married to Ed yet, you'd be in business school by spring, all right. Folks has to work together and kind of figure when money's as scarce as 'tis here."

Sometimes the Shaws were Lois May's kin, and sometimes not. It rested with her and Mrs. Shaw to decide to fit the occasion whether the fact that her grandmother once been Webster carried any significance. With Bun, Mrs. Shaw's other daughter by her first husband, the point was never disputed. She was Bun.

"That's right, ma," Jen said now, cheerfully. "What is it they sing in school, Lois May? A long pull and a strong pull? You'll be educated yet."

"If I could only get hold of a decent spring coat anywhere," sighed Lois May. "I'd have clothes enough to do."

"Yes, but you've got to have money for that tuition fee," her mother said. "And your board's got to be paid some way. I don't know where. Sometimes I can't see any hope at all but I'm bound you'll go, that's all. I'm just that set. Seems as though I'll get down sick, though, studying over it."

John came panting up the shed stairs.

"They're coming, Jen," he told her in his grave, 5-year-old voice. "They are just right behind."

"That's good," Jen said. "Everything's ready."

She looked up and smiled at Mark Shaw, her father, a big stooped man with light hair graying at the ends and a broad, brown face; at Ed, her brother, tall and lean, in a blue frock coat and overalls over his heavy winter clothes; at Bun helping Ed to carry a basket of wood, her full, plain face twisted with the effort, and her red nightgown bobbing into her mouth.

The two men hung sheepskin-lined coats and visored caps behind the stove, and laid wet mittens on the shelf to dry. They sat down, one in a chair, the other on the end of the couch, and pulled off their felt boots, grunting faintly as they did so. John scrambled under the stove and brought out heavy shoes. Mark Shaw, the oldest, washed and took their places at the table without speaking.

The others were already there. Jen waited on them, tied John's napkin, filled Ed's cup again when he had gulped down, hot and clear, the tea she had poured for him, pushed the biscuit toward her father. The men ate heartily and her mind upon their plates. Mrs. Shaw took a bit of meat, a taste of applesauce. "My tea," she said, "is all that keeps me going. I don't know where I ever had a taste of appetite for anything." Lois May sat upright, her hands held daintily, aware of how she used her fork and spoon. The fire in the stove licked at the heavy logs, and a coal snapped out on the rug, making the cat jump. The children twisted in their chairs to see, and laughed. "Come, finish your supper, Jen," said Mrs. Shaw. "Drink your milk, John." He drank fast, gulping, and emerged from the glass with a white rim on his upper lip, his eyes triumphant. "That's the best," he said, his shadows on the wall.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 161

There were no black boys now to serve Zveri's officers, as even their personal servants had deserted to foregather with the men of their own blood; and so the five prepared their own breakfast, and Zveri's attempt to command their services had met with refusal.

While they were eating Kitembo approached them, accompanied by the headmen of the different tribes. "We are leaving with our people for our own country," said the Basembo chief. "We leave for your journey to your own camp." The whites were silent.

"Many of our warriors wish to kill you," continued the chief, "and that I cannot prevent if you attempt to accompany us, for they fear the vengeance of the ghosts that have followed you for many moons." "You cannot leave us like this!" expostulated Zveri.

"You cannot tell us what to do, white man," said Kitembo. "We are few and we are many. Your power over us is broken. In everything you have failed. We do not follow such a leader." "You can't do it," growled Zveri. "You will all be punished for this, Kitembo."

"You cannot tell us what to do, white man," said Kitembo. "We are few and we are many. Your power over us is broken. In everything you have failed. We do not follow such a leader." "You can't do it," growled Zveri. "You will all be punished for this, Kitembo."

Dressmaking Thoughts

In making over any frock for spring, you might remember this word from the fashion front: Whether the dress be black, pastel or printed, its collar line is sure to be high and its sleeves long, at least covering the elbow—and natural shoulder curves are appearing from out

NEW AND SNAPPY.

Creamed Sardines on Toast.
Two cups evaporated milk, one-half cup soft bread crumbs, salt and pepper, cayenne, one can sardines (one cup), two tablespoons lemon juice, toast, paprika. Cook milk, crumbs and seasonings over boiling water until crumbs are quite soft. Skin and bone the sardines. There should be one cup. Add lemon juice and when ready to serve stir into hot sauce.
Pour over hot, buttered toast and garnish with paprika. Six servings.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOME-MAKERS

Garnishes.
Edible garnishes are always best.
Perhaps the simplest means of garnishing is a sprig of parsley on meats or a nice slice of lemon on fish.

When Making Jelly.
When the jelly is ready to pour into glasses, put the glasses in a pan of hot water to prevent their cracking. The plan should be shallow and the water about two inches deep.
Soup Too Salty.
Grate a raw potato and cook it with ## the soup a few minutes longer. The potato will absorb the salt.

Grainy Candy or Iceing.
The use of malt extract in candies and iceing will prevent their graining.

Cracked Eggs.
Wrap them individually in soft paper and you may boil them safely.

Cleaning Piano Keys.
Rub lightly with soft cloth moistened with alcohol. If slightly yellowed, dampen clean dry cloth with peroxide of hydrogen and rub over keys.

To Clean Frying Pans.
If black inside, clean with a crust of bread and wash with hot soda and water.
